
LONDON
DAWN to DUSK
Celebration of a city

Jenny Oulton & David Paterson ~ Foreword by John Humphrys

From St Paul's Cathedral at twilight to Canary Wharf in the morning sun, from London Bridge at rush hour to Regent's Park at first light, this book's lively text and specially-commissioned photography captures London's sights and people throughout the day. David Paterson's magnificent photography presents a fresh perspective on well-known London landmarks and distinctive neighbourhoods.

Jenny Oulton had a distinguished career acting in the theatre, including time with the Royal Shakespeare Company, before becoming a Blue Badge Guide registered with the London Tourist Board. A well respected authority on London, she uses her theatrical skills to enthral visitors to the city.

David Paterson is a landscape and commercial photographer with many years' experience and has a particular passion in photographing London. He was specially commissioned to photograph the city for this book.

"The idea of photographing a city from dawn to dusk is inspired ... this is photography of the highest order ... I had never thought of London as a city of great beauty – until I opened the covers of this remarkable book"

John Humphrys
